Tim Welsh joins WD Partners as a Managing Director

WD Partners, a customer experience expert for global multi-unit food and retail brands, announces that Tim Welsh has joined the company as Managing Director of its Irvine, California office. He'll serve as principal architect and subject matter expert, and will play an integral role in West coast business development.

He joins WD Partners from The Ohio State University, where he was the Director of Development for the Knowlton School of Architecture and the College of Engineering. Before that Welsh co-founded and was managing partner of Meyers Welsh, an award-winning design firm. Meyers Welsh clients included Abercrombie & Fitch, The Limited, and American Apparel. He also developed mixed-use urban projects through East Village, an architecture, development and real estate firm.

Welsh is a Registered Architect, a LEED-Accredited Professional, and a Certified Document Technologist with the Construction Specification Institute. He is a member of both the Executive Board of Directors for the AIA Columbus Chapter, and serves on the Executive Advisory Board to the OSU Knowlton School of Architecture.

WD Partners' Irvine office was established in 2001. The location employs architects, mechanical, electrical, and structural engineers to support its clients, which include Tesco's Fresh & Easy, Ross Stores, The Home Depot, and BJ's Restaurants. In November 2010, the company opened an office in San Francisco, in addition to its other offices in Columbus (Ohio), Phoenix, Miami, and Mumbai.

About WD: WD Partners helps food and retail brands innovate through strategy, design, architecture & engineering, and implementation services. The results are enhanced customer experiences, higher sales, improved profitability, and faster return on investment. WD Partners works for the leading regional and global brands.
